These McKinley Times and the Times Grover Made.

AT THE COLISEUM.
The largest crowd under cover that the president has come in contact with during his present trip gathered at the Coliseum tonight to hear his address. Probably 20,000 people were inside the building when the address was delivered, and twice as many more were unable to get anywhere within the sound of his voice. The president was escorted to the Coliseum by the president and directors of the exposition.

Mr. McKinley walked to the big stage in the center of the building while the people filled the air with terrific applause and Sousa's band played "Hail to the Chief."

"Is it true that a serious hitch has arisen between the commission and that break in negotiations is possible?"

"This rumor is a ridiculous exaggeration. No hitch has arisen."

"On what grounds," Spain asks the United States to assume the Cuban debt?"

"Cuba is the key to the Gulf of Mexico, and has long been necessary to the United States. For that reason she might as well assume the Cuban debt."

"When the United States gets Cuba she will have complete control of the currents, which will enable her to effect a conversion of the debt and reduce the interest from six to two per cent."

proclamation of a military government. Apparently the Orleanists were at the head of the movement and an English club is mentioned. There is little doubt that the plot has been frustrated, but a very uneasy feeling prevails.

The fact that General De Blandeferre has just undergone an operation for anthrax regarded as showing that he had nothing to do with the conspiracy. On the other hand it appears that quite recently the gun farmers were withdrawn from Normandy and Picardy to Paris.
